Company: Altium

Location: Australia

Category: other-general

About the Role:

We are looking for an experienced Product manager to Help Altium to enter the game in the high-end market segment from the Product perspective by building capabilities to support technology and processes in the advanced and complex PCB design and teamwork.

A Day in The Life of Our Product Manager:

Duties and Responsibilities:

Organizational Skills: collaborating with highly performant teams of product managers and engineers, assigning tasks and the projects necessary to implement the product strategy.

Prioritization Skills: organize the tasks related to a campaign. Good prioritization skills to arrange tasks in the most efficient manner.

Product Management Skills: You've owned a roadmap and know what it takes to drive a Product to the top of it's industry, understanding users needs, and translating that into the future of the market.

Analytical Skills: understanding how data can be used for a competitive advantage and collaboration between engineering, marketing, sales, and customer service teams

Who We're Looking For:

Develop and manage high-end constituents of Nexus and Altium Designer roadmaps

Collaborate with Customers on identifying and solving high level challenges

“Midwife” approach to respectfully get to the real problem and start crafting solution from there rather than from what Customer wants

Follow the technological cuttings-edge:

Build connection and collaborate with key organizations, technologists, and engineers,

Closely watch competition: products and value proposition

Define high level requirements for product capabilities

Collaborate with product owners and engineering teams on roadmap delivery

Excellent communication skills. This role will require effective collaboration and cross-functional coordination across internal and external contributors

Extremely detail-oriented and organized, able to manage multiple projects to meet deadlines
